These people have the most exciting job in (or out of) the world! They travel into outer space in rockets and do experiments and collect information. In the future, they will probably visit faraway places in the solar system, like Mars or the Moon. They physically and mentally train for many years to go into space. This is because space is so dangerous. These people are great adventurers, but they are also very well-educated. They often have university degrees in science or engineering. If you want to go to outer space, you better study your maths and science.
